D. H. BLAIR IS CHOICE OF PARTY

Republican Candidate From Fifth District.

Winston Man Nominated To Succeed John Motley Morehead In Congress—Morehead's Choice—Took Long Time To Get Mr. Blair In Notion To Run—Much Pressure Brought to Bear on Morehead—Butler On Scene.

After caucusing for nearly two hours after the scheduled time for the convention to convene the Republican Congressional Convention of the Fifth district yesterday afternoon nominated Mr. D. H. Blair, of Winston-Salem, as the candidate to succeed John Motley Morehead, the present incumbent. The nomination was by acclamation, no other name being presented before the convention for consideration.

A large number of the delegates arrived early yesterday morning and they held numerous conferences or caucuses during the morning, the lobby of the Guilford hotel buzzing like a swarm of bees. The whole trouble was that the delegates could not find a man who would consent to allow his name before the convention as a candidate, or rather no one that the delegates wanted as a candidate would. So when the hour for convening arrived they still had no candidate and it took an hour and three quarters to get Mr. Blair in a notion to make the race.

State Chairman John Motley Morehead arrived early yesterday morning and he stated more firmly than ever that he would not allow his name to go before the convention as a candidate for the nomination. It was found that Mr. Morehead had fixed his eyes on Mr. Blair and he asked that Mr. Blair be nominated. But Mr. Blair said "You first, my dear John," and while he did not refuse as stoutly as Mr. Morehead the delegates could get no expression that he would accept if named over his protest.

So after waiting for an hour and a half a number of the leaders got together and cornering Mr. Blair whispered something in his ear that caused him to change tactics and the whole affair was almost history then. It required but a few minutes to do the trick after the convention was called to order. The convention was called to order at 2:45 by Chairman J. T. Benbow. It was moved that the nomination of a candidate for Congress be taken up. Carried. Mr. Blair was placed in nomination by Alameda county and the nomination was seconded by William Grissom and a delegate from Stokes, the latter moving that the nomination be by acclamation. Carried.

Mr. Blair was escorted into the convention hall and he made a short speech in which he thanked the convention for the honor conferred upon him, an unsought honor he said, and urged all to work together and pull up even a larger majority than Mr. Morehead polled two years ago. The fifth is the greatest district in the State and has the largest population of any Congressional district in the South. In fact, it is surpassed by few in the entire country in population, wealth and manufacturing industries, he said. He declared that the Republican policies had made it great; that Greensboro, Durham, Winston and numerous other towns in the district had been built under and through the influence of the policies of Republicanism. While he did not say so Mr. Blair intimated that little credit was due the Democrats for the wealth and productiveness of the imperial fifth.

State Chairman Morehead was then called upon to speak and he made a few remarks in which he thanked the convention for the honor conferred on him for adopting a resolution endorsing his work in Congress and assured the delegates that he had refused to run again solely because he wanted to use his influence throughout the entire state and lead a Republican to Congress from every district instead of from trying to get from the Fifth himself and that it was not because he feared defeat. He wanted to make North Carolina the first Southern State to cast its electoral vote for a Republican president, which would do two years from now.

The different counties announced their members of the executive committee as follows: Alameda, J. R. Hoffer; Caswell, C. J. Yarborough; Durham, J. C.

Angier, Forsyth, M. F. Masten; Guilford, J. A. Hoskins; Granville, R. P. Hackney; Orange, Luico Lloyd; Person, John C. Pass; Rockingham, L. S. Waller; Stokes, C. M. Jones; Surry, J. B. Sparger. On motion of J. A. Hoskins the nominee was empowered to select his chairman and secretary.

While the delegates were assembling and the more important leaders were conferring with Mr. Blair and other possible candidates there was a short speech by Mr. Cicero Holton, of Jamestown. He spoke about five minutes and his talk was received with applause.

The reason for all the delay in securing a man who would run is about like this, according to some of the more alert politicians who attended the convention: District Attorney Holton and Postmaster Reynolds with bull dog tenacity kept nagging at Morehead to run until they saw they had gone far enough. Then the Forsyth delegation began working on John T. Benbow, but Mr. Benbow knew that Morehead wanted Blair to have the nomination and he refused to be dragged into the game. The fact that the Forsyth delegation was solid for Benbow caused Mr. Blair to be averse to running. This was the state of affairs when the hour for the convention to convene arrived and it took some smooth talking to get matters in shape.

Marion Butler was in the city though he kept within the confines of his room until after it was all over. It is believed that it was Butler who got Morehead to give up his idea of running again and the theory is also advanced that had not Mr. Butler held the reins firmly the convention would have broken over his orders and nominated Mr. Morehead willy nilly.

THE INTERURBAN

Charlotte Is Keen For It—An Enthusiastic Meeting of Citizens.

Charlotte News: When President C. O. Kuester, of the Greater Charlotte Club put the question before the mass meeting of citizens at the Selwyn last night: "Do you want the interurban or not?" every man in the audience was on his feet, and the volley of "yesses" almost shook the walls.

The meeting was unanimous in wanting a franchise granted the Piedmont Traction Company to bring its interurban lines here.

On motion of Mr. Plummer Stewart a committee of five was appointed to act in the matter, using their judgment as to what course to pursue in securing the franchise for the interurban. The committee consists of:

D. P. Hutchison, J. H. Weddington, J. A. Durham, W. S. Alexander, E. M. Cole.

Proximity 9, Mebane 1.

The Proximity baseball team journeyed down to Mebane yesterday and defeated the Mebane team by the score of 9 to 1. The game was featureless because of the heavy hitting of the Proximity team and the pitching of Hobbs. Proximity made 17 hits in all, E. Lohman getting 4 out of 5 times at bat and Murrow getting a two-base hit and a triple. The three base hit of Murrow's came when the bases were full and scored three men.

Wheat Threshing In Randolph.

Mr. S. E. Barker, of Thacker & Brockmann's store, spent one day this week at the farm of his father, Mr. G. P. Barker, who had just finished threshing the largest crop of wheat yet reported in Randolph county—1175 1-2 bushels. Mr. Barker sows the Klondike and Leek's prolific which will weigh 65 and 66 lbs. to the bushel, machine measure. I. P. Frazier and Misses Era and Mayme Fountain accompanied Mr. Barker to his home.

REUNION OF FORMER STUDENTS.

Enjoyable Affair At Jefferson Academy, McLeansville, Friday Night.

The former students of Jefferson Academy held their fourth annual reunion at McLeansville Friday evening, and despite the unfavorable weather there was a large attendance of students and friends of the school. Supper was served on the campus by the young ladies between sun down and dark, and the good things with which the tables were loaded made this the really great feature of the occasion.

At eight o'clock the audience gathered in the Philanthropic Society hall, where the business session was held and speeches made. Those who spoke were Charles A. Hines, Martin L. Wright, Herbert V. Cobb and Miss Leslie Lindsey, of Greensboro; B. B. Slaughter, of Burlington; Edgar T. Hines, of Elon College, and Prof. Charles D. Cobb, of McLeansville. Features of the evening were a very clever original poem by E. T. Hines, and a set of ridiculous resolutions offered by C. A. Hines.

Officers were elected as follows: President, B. B. Slaughter, Burlington; vice-president, H. V. Cobb, Greensboro; secretary, Miss Keturah Cobb, McLeansville; members executive committee, Miss Leslie Lindsey and O. W. Hines.

After the meeting a bunch of the old students gathered in the Hesperian hall, where until midnight they had a good time relating stories and singing college and popular songs.

THE BABY OPERA

To All Lovers of Children It Will Be a Great Treat.

To all lovers of children the Baby Opera is going to be a great treat. About twenty-five little girls from two years of age to five will represent the "wax dolls" and in their short full paper dresses they could easily be mistaken for pink lamp shades. Among this baby troupe you will find many soloists and the most wonderful dancers. They alone could furnish an evening's entertainment. The Yama Yama boys keep the audience in an uproar from the time they appear until the curtain falls.

The tiny Buster Browns and Mary Jones are as cunning as can be, while those taking the part of morning glories are beautiful in their crepe paper costumes of blue, white, pink and green. The rosebuds will win the applause of every spectator. The golden daisies with their singing and dancing are well worth seeing. The cowboys, prairie girls and lovely Indian scenes are something no one wants to miss. Remember the night, Wednesday, Aug. 24.

Rice and two sons. Great quantities of fish were caught, good sport being had in all the various ways of catching fish.

The sportsmen also found an abundance of squirrel in the neighborhood. Tents and paraphernalia of all kind were carried.

BENTLEY STAR WITH THE STICK

His Batting Average Yesterday 1,000.

Got Four Hits Out of Four Times At Bat—Beusse Got Two Out of Three Times Up—Game Won by Champs Score Three to One—Walters Allowed Six Safeties—Benefit Tickets—Other Games Yesterday.

The last game of the season with Manager Kelly's Electricians was celebrated yesterday by a perfect game both by the visitors and the Champs. It was only a question of pitching or hitting, whichever way you care to look at it, and Tony Walters proved himself the superior of Clark by enough to win the game by the score of 3 to 1.

The decided feature of the game was the phenomenal hitting of Togo Bentley, who played a perfect game, getting only one chance in the field which he accepted but at the bat out of four times up he hit for four safe hits, three of them being over second base and the other one to right field. Bentley's hitting was the best exhibition of stick work on the local grounds for the season. Hicks at short put up a great game, handling his eight chances in a masterly manner and his single in the eighth inning won the game. Rickard played a great center field getting five chances and handling them in the best possible manner, making catches that seemed impossible. The whole team was on its mettle and played a gingery game.

The visitor's work was also above the standard, J. McCarthy leading the hitting with two singles and accepting thirteen chances at first without the suspicion of a miscue. Corbett was a star at second, getting nine chances and fielding them all perfectly. The game was an interesting one and certainly deserved a better attendance than it received.

The Scoring.

The runs were made in the second, fifth and eighth and in this manner: Second, Greensboro: Bentley singles, goes to second on a wild pitch. Hicks walks. Moran flies out to Kelly. Bentley steals third. Beusse singles down first base line and Bentley scores. Walters grounds out to J. McCarthy.

Fourth, Anderson: A. McCarthy flies out to Rickard. Kelly grounds to Hicks and is out at first. Joe McCarthy singles to left and scores on Smith's two-base hit. McEnroe pops out to Walters.

Eighth, Greensboro: Rickard grounds to short and is out at first. Fuller singles. Doak singles, Bentley singles and the bases are full. Clapp hits to second and Fuller is forced out at the plate. Hicks hits a safe one to left and Bentley and Doak score. Moran flies out to left.

Four Benefit Games.

On account of the team going bad at the beginning of the season, bad weather and other causes the attendance at the games this season have not been anything near what it should have been and the owners of the club are in the hole a good sized sum of money. The present owners took over the club when it was about to be moved to another town and saved Greensboro from receiving a black eye all over the country as not having enough sporting blood and backbone enough to support a losing team and keep the game in the city. They have financed the proposition at a considerable loss and intend to give the fans the very best article of baseball in their power, but a number of prominent citizens think that they should not be asked to bear all the expense of the game when the town is getting valuable advertising from having a team in the league that it could not get in any other way, so arrangements have been made to make the next four games, the last of the season, August 28-29 with Charlotte and August 31-September 1 with Greenville, benefit games tickets to the four games will be sold for one dollar, good for admission to gate and to the grandstand free.

These tickets will be placed in the hands of voluntary solicitors this week who will canvass the city and they expect to sell at least a thousand and five hundred. If you already have a ticket buy another and help the club out. There is no limit as to how many tickets you can buy, buy one for all the members of the family and let them all see the games. There are at least five thousand people in Greensboro that have never in their lives witnessed a professional game and it has been suggested that a little missionary work be done among them to get them out to see at least one game and possibly there may be several among them that may become members of the "Faithful," needing only a single game to convert them into real fans.

The tickets will be put on sale Monday and should meet with a big sale. The names of the subscribers will be published in the local papers. There will still be the regular tickets on sale at the Park for the games at the regular price for those who do not care to subscribe to the benefit tickets.

Cone Company Wins Again!

Despite the fact that the recently discovered "jinks" Manager "Muggsy" McGraw McCormick of the Cone Co.'s team participated in yesterday's contest against the team from Tabernacle the locals won after a hard fought battle of twelve innings by the score of 7 to 6. The game was played on the Cone Company's diamond at the corner of South Ashe and West Washington streets and witnessed by about two hundred fans who rooted until the peace-loving residents of the neighborhood were tempted to call for the police to quell the riot. The game was exciting and won and lost by both teams several times during the contest and the features were the heavy slugger by the locals and the superb twirling by Goodman, the Cone Company's young phenom, who fanned 14 of the county boys. Coffin's hitting was also a feature. The two teams will play again next Saturday on the Tabernacle grounds.

VETERANS DAY AT STATE FAIR

Confederate Soldiers Urged to Attend.

In General Invitation Sent Out by President Graham of State Association—Mexican Court Imposes Death Sentence on Murderer of North Carolina—Charters Issued—Excursion to Raleigh.

Raleigh, Aug. 20.—In a general invitation issued by President W. A. Graham, of the North Carolina Confederate Veterans' Association to North Carolina veterans in and out of the state to attend the annual meeting to be held on Wednesday of State Fair week, October 19, he declares that the attendance is yearly growing less, but that he wants every veteran who can possibly do so to come this year. The program will, he says, be one of exceptional interest this year and for veterans now living out of the state the "home-coming" feature of the fair and the general reunion feature of this annual meeting of the veterans will be especially attractive.

There came to Raleigh today from Barber's Junction, via Winston-Salem, one of the largest and most representative excursions that has visited Raleigh this summer. There were six hundred and more of the excursionists who had six hours for sightseeing in the state buildings and points of interest about the city.

There came to Governor Kitchin today official notification from the United States department of state that in Mexico a sentence of death has just been imposed on Jesus Monarras for the murder of W. R. Boggs, Jr., son of General W. R. Boggs, of Winston-Salem, November 17, 1907. Mr. Boggs was a prominent mining engineer and was at the time of his murder dealing strenuously with a labor trouble in the mines he was connected with. There was an accomplice in the murder, Emilio Montenegro, who is given ten years imprisonment. This was in Dugado, Mexico, and the sentence has just been imposed by the Supreme court of that country. Governor Kitchin has just named a big delegation of Eastern Carolina business men to go as delegates from North Carolina to the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Convention to be in session in Providence, R. I., August 31, to September 3.

C., capital $75,000 by George Spencer and others.

PLANNING FOR AN AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN.

Chairman Cooke, of Democratic Congressional Executive Committee, Will Canvass District.

The Democratic Executive Committee of the Fifth Congressional district met yesterday afternoon in the office of Mr. T. C. Hoyle, every county in the district being represented either in person or by proxy excepting Alameda. Mr. A. Wayland Cooke was elected chairman and Mr. G. H. Hastings, of Winston-Salem, was reelected secretary.

Chairman Cooke was seen last night and he stated that he was planning for a most thorough canvass throughout the entire district. And an aggressive campaign will be waged, beginning about the middle of September. He stated that every effort would be made to poll even a larger majority than was polled by Mr. Kitchin four years ago.

Rev. L. E. Smith Called.

The congregation of the Christian church has extended to Rev. L. E. Smith, of Graham, a call to the pastorate of the church for the coming conference year. Rev. J. W. Bolton, who has served as pastor for the past two years, tendered his resignation to the congregation some time ago and it was accepted at the quarterly conference on Wednesday night. The pastoral committee has not yet heard from Rev. Mr. Smith as to whether he will accept the call. Rev. Mr. Smith is a graduate of Elon College, and is highly recommended as a preacher of power.

UNSAFE TO MILK A MULE.

Rash Man Who Mistook One For Cow Now Lies in Hospital.

New York, Aug. 19.—Because he tried to milk a mule—mistaking it for a cow—Dan Friedman, of Maspeth, L. I., lies today on a cot in the German Hospital, having his dislocated left elbow, his fractured collarbone, and his two broken ribs attended to. Between groans he whispered to the surgeons this high resolve:

"Never again will I try to milk a cow—mule—in the dark."

Friedman, who keeps considerable live stock, was awakened before daylight by the cries of his baby, and as the infant persisted in its wailing, Friedman realized that he would have to go to the barn and get some milk from the mild-eyed Jersey cow stabled there.

Sleepy, but determined to assuage the thirst of his child, Friedman went into a stall and, taking his seat on the milking stool, gave utterance to a soothing "So boss," and reached for the cream department.

Bossy was coy and sidled away from the milker, and Friedman, losing patience, gave the animal a resounding slap on the flank. Friedman says he thought Halley's comet had returned and hit him a terrible blow, and after that he lost consciousness.

When neighbors who heard the crash rushed to the spot they found Friedman senseless on the floor of the stall, and the mule he had mistaken for the Jersey standing with ears down and a dangerous look in its eyes.

The doctors say Friedman will recover.

Craddock Shoes Stand the Racket

Every day in the week, a hundred times every day—you strain and twist your shoes to the breaking point. Ordinary shoes soon lose their shape. They grow baggy. This is because the quality put into them is mostly a matter of looks—and that is entirely a matter of finish well rubbed in and burnished. Quality in

This 3 eyelet, plain toe, patent pump is built on our New York last which proved so popular and gave such perfect satisfaction last season. It is just the thing for dress up and in gun metal or Russian calf makes a cool, classy street shoe. A Woman's Solution

By JANE PINCKNEY BENNETT

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Please consider our engagement broken," she snapped.
"Have you considered it broken?"
"What do you mean?"
"I mean have you thought over the consequences of a broken engagement between us? We have been engaged for a month; all our friends know that we are lovers."

"Were lovers."
"Supposed to be lovers."
"That's more like it."
"Now suppose we announce that all is off between us. People will naturally be curious to know the reason."
"It is none of their business."
"But they will make it their business."

"I shall tell them that I have been very much disappointed in you."
"And what shall I say about it?"
"What you like."
"I shall say I discovered that I am unworthy of a girl with so much amiability."

"There was no reply to this."
"What is to be considered in the matter is whether you contemplate renewing our engagement after it has once been broken."

"Never."
"Very well; so far so good. In that case I am free to engage myself to whosoever I please."
"And it is my privilege to do the same."

"Certainly. Tomorrow evening we dine at the Spinglers'. Naturally I shall be expected to take you in to dinner. This will be embarrassing for both of us. Had you not better send word to Mrs. Spingler that our engagement is off?"

"She pondered a few moments, toying with her engagement ring, which she had pulled off her finger, then said: 'Mrs. Spingler is a very prying woman and a frightful gossip. She'll wish to know all about how it happened and if she is not informed will give her own version of it to every one present and every one not present.'"

"That is one of the points to be considered, or, rather, was one of the points to be considered. It's too late now. You have dismissed me and said that you will never recall me. We are both free to marry some one else."

There was a pause here. She slipped the engagement ring over the point of her finger, as though afraid he was about to take it away. Then she said: "The breaking of our engagement is one thing; its announcement to the world is another. Is it necessary that we should announce it through Mrs. Spingler?"

"We might give it out today to some one else."
"It seems singular that you, who have so many times sworn that you loved me, can't bear the idea of sitting beside me for an hour or two at a dinner party."

"What would we talk about?"
"The weather, I suppose."

"No, thank you; I don't go to dinners to talk about the weather. But let us leave this subject of the dinner and agree upon a reason to give our friends for our quarrel."

"We will give them the true one, of course."

"And that is?"
"Your horrible treatment of me."

"Please frame a statement of it."
"Oh, you are better at stating things than I am. Frame it yourself. Any version you give of it will be satisfactory to me."

"Very well; I shall put it in this way: It started—what started it? I've forgotten."

"Why, it was something about—wasn't it about—funny I can't remember what started it. I only know that you acted horribly."

"Well, then, we will put it in that way. We'll say that we can't remember what the quarrel was about, but I acted horribly."

"That would be considered very silly of us."

"Silly of you, I fear."
"Not if they knew how horribly you have acted."

"What did I say or do?"
"Everything that was disagreeable."
"Name one."

"Oh, how bothersome you are! How can I tell you what you said when I can't remember what it was about?"

"I suppose then we are to announce to the world that, not being able to remember the cause of our quarrel, it is impossible to give a cause for the breaking of our engagement."

"That would be too ridiculous for anything. People would laugh at us."

"Upon the whole, I think you were right when you said that it's none of people's business why we have agreed to part. We will give no reason."

"Do you think that would be possible?"
"No; I don't. But since I've not been able to suggest any feasible cause myself I've fallen back upon your own suggestion."

There was no reply to this, only a stolid stare at the floor, while the finger of the engagement ring continued.

"Come," he said presently. "I leave it all to you. Decide what course we shall take. Name a way out of the dilemma."

They were sitting side by side. She dropped her hand on his. She had slipped the engagement ring back on her finger. He put his arm about her waist, drew her to him and kissed her. "A woman's solution," he said.

The discovery of the fact that the President is related to Senator Aldrich is not calculated to do the President any good.

Millions of cotton spindles in this country will be idle during the latter part of this month and first half of September. Really this Morehead-Taft brand of prosperity is something fierce.

It is stated now that the cave-in at Saturday is viewed lightly at that place. Like most other things it was exaggerated, no doubt.

"Taft delves into his family history," says a headline. Choicer reading no doubt than his party history, more especially, some of the late chapters.

The Oxford Public Ledger declares that "this district will never again go Republican." Anyhow it certainly is not likely to go Republican this year.

Mr. Roosevelt made a speech to negroes in Washington the other day and as usual called their attention to the Ten Commandments. But we do speak in criticism. It is well to hark back to the Decalogue now and then.

Col. Roosevelt says that he doesn't think he has been encouraged to take active interest in the Republican campaign in New York State. Instead, he has been virtually requested (and that not too politely) not to interfere. The "old guard" of the New York State Republican party is not deserving of admiration, but in implying that no single man in this country is an indispensable we believe that it has done the country a service.

"It is a curious ambition among cities to be big," says the Baltimore Sun. We don't know whether it is so curious or not. One reason people choose cities as abiding places is because they like the many-sidedness, the variety of cities. And the bigger the city the greater the variety both of your fellow-dwellers and of their doings. The bigger the city the more it gets in the way of amusement and entertainment and, whether it is a pleasant fact to contemplate or not, this is an amusement-loving and a comfort-loving generation.

The minority report of the Select Committee on Wages and Prices of Commodities, prepared by Senator Johnston, of Alabama, finds that "the unprotected classes" include the farmer, the railroad employe, the doctor, the lawyer, the preacher, the painter, the carpenter, the blacksmith, the bricklayer, the merchant, the clerk, the barber, the teacher and the unskilled laborer in many occupations. In short, the many are unprotected and the few are well taken care of. This assertion used to be lightly dismissed as coming from irresponsible calamity-howlers. But that it is a just statement of the case is coming to be more and more generally realized.

So the race for Congress from this district is to be between Major Stedman and Mr. David H. Blair. Without intending any disparagement of Mr. Blair's merits, we must say that Major Stedman ought to find it easy to win the election. Not, however, that we don't think it necessary for Major Stedman to put up the best fight in his power. On the contrary we think it wise for him to proceed just as if he thought it was to be a nip and tuck fight, having his organization do its utmost to get out the full Democratic vote of the district. Mr. Blair looks like tolerably easy prey, but there shouldn't a single chance be taken. Everything that can be done to redeem the district for the Democracy should be done and we believe it will be done.

One of the many ways of getting "easy money" is by the allowance of fees in receivership cases and in bankruptcy proceedings in court. On occasion all the assets of a bankrupt are dissipated in this way. In the case of the Toxaway Company, in the Federal court in Asheville this week, Judge Connor cut off fees aggregating $3,000 that had been allowed attorneys by the trustees, ruling that the fees mentioned should not be allowed as a matter of law; and it may be remarked that this is one of many evidences of Judge Connor's fitness for the position he holds.—Statesville Landmark.

It seems to be an axiom that if there is anything left of a business in distress, a failure with the attendant fees will wipe out the remnant. In exercising a sharp scrutiny of the fees in such cases, our judges can as the Landmark says demonstrate their fitness for their positions.

Robert E. Lewis To Marry.

Invitations have been received here reading as follows:
"Doctor and Mrs. Matthew Beattie request the pleasure of your company at the marriage of their niece, Miss Helen Louise Scarlett to Mr. Robert Ernest Lewis on the evening of Thursday the twenty-fifth of August at six o'clock, Cornwall, New York."

Mr. Lewis was formerly assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Winston-Salem and went from there to Lockport, N. Y., as secretary. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis of this city and is a young man of great promise.

Couldn't Catch Foster.

The police had a merry chase after Foster Benton, colored, early this morning and they failed to get him as he holds the record for fast traveling in these parts. Foster has been wanted for some time and Sergeant Jones and Officers McFarland and Hepler went after him this morning shortly after midnight. They got in sight and gave chase but Foster went over a barbed wire fence and escaped. Officer Hepler, who did not know of the fence, ran into it and tore his trousers all to pieces, the barbed wire cutting his legs in several places.

Excursions Pass Through.

Two excursions passed through the city last night. One was returning to Barber's Junction from Raleigh and the other was returning to Durham from Lynchburg. Both trains were well filled with happy folk, it appearing that the outings were immensely enjoyed.

Reception Last Night.

Last evening in the Smith Memorial building from 8 to 10:30 o'clock the congregation of the First Presbyterian church gave an informal reception in honor of the pastor, Rev. Melton Clark, and Elder A. M. Scales, who have recently returned from a trip abroad. The auditorium had been decorated with cut flowers and ferns. An orchestra rendered delightful music and the hours were pleasantly spent in social intercourse, shaking hands with the returned voyagers.

Wedding Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Taylor Hedgepeth announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Lorena Pleasants, to Mr. William Barry Fluharty, formerly of Baltimore, Md., but now of this city. The marriage to be solemnized in St. Barnabas' Episcopal church early in the fall. This announcement will be read with much interest by the many friends of this well known young couple throughout this and other states.

The Last Call.

Bear in mind, "lest we forget," Monday, August 22, at 8 p. m., fourteen sweet singers, from Oxford Masonic Orphanage, will delight a large audience of cultured people in Smith Memorial building. Ten pretty girls and four bright boys will do the honors. Better get tickets in advance and go early for good seats. Prices 25c.; children 15c. Young ladies and Masons will supply you.

The waiters' "last call for supper in the dining car," means get a seat now or miss the meal. So "the last call" to the orphans in Smith Memorial building Monday night means get a seat promptly or miss a far better thing.

A few tickets each have been mailed, with letters, to friends to sell and report the proceeds to the committee. This of course binds none of these friends to pay for those tickets unless they sell or use them. Tickets so sent out were only to those regarded as staunch friends to the cause, and fine results are being reported daily. Let the good work continue—the orphans are coming.

HOUSES OF SCUTARI.

A Possible Reason Why Their Windows Are Iron Barred.

Of all villainous roads those outside of Scutari are the most depraved. They are not roads at all, but just washes and wallows and ditches and stone gullies. I have seen bad roads in parts of our own country, roads surveyed by our own Washington and never touched since, but they were a dream of luxury as compared with these of Turkey. Our carriages bobbled and bobbed and pitched and bumped themselves until I got out and walked to keep from being lamed for life.

And then the houses—the villas I had expected to see—dear me, how can I picture those cheap, ugly, unapplied, overdecorated architectural crimes? They are wooden and belong to the jigsaw period gone mad. They suggest an owner who has been too busy saving money for a home to acquire any taste, who has spent his savings for lumber and trimmings and had nothing left for paint. Still he managed to reserve enough to put iron bars on his windows—that is, on part of the house, the bare—every man becoming his own jailer, as it were. I remarked:

"I suppose that is to keep the neighbors from stealing their wives."

But the horse doctor, wiser and more observant, said:

"No; it is to keep a neighbor from breaking in and leaving another."

Republican State Headquarters.

Yesterday State Chairman John Motley Morehead engaged a number of rooms in the old Benbow hotel building and will in a few weeks open Republican State headquarters. Mr. Gilliam Grissom will be in charge as assistant to Mr. Morehead. Messrs. Morehead and Grissom left last night for Spray to spend Sunday.

What It Achieved

By LOUISE E. CUMMINGS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Ed Archer and Molly Doyle were as children one of those couples we like to read about, but the stories of whose loves are rarely finished by marriage.

There was something enduring about the affair between Ed and Molly. At any rate, it lasted till Ed went away to college, and that is about as long as child loves usually last. In this case there was nothing on either side to indicate that during Ed's college course love was smoldering in his breast or that of his child love. There was no correspondence between them, and if either ever thought of the other he one besides themselves knew it. They missed each other when Ed returned for the only vacation he spent at home, and when he was graduated as a civil engineer a position was ready for him, of which he at once availed himself. Therefore they did not meet from the time he began his studies till two years after he had been bucking against the world.

When they did meet Ed was paying attention to a young widow of means. His mother was not well, and he left this work and his chamber to pay the mother a visit. While at home he called on Molly Doyle.

Now, it happened that Molly and Ed's widow had a mutual friend. So when Ed appeared Molly knew all about his intentions, or at least what appeared to be his intentions.

She came down to meet him with a letter in her hand. After greeting him she threw the missive on a table. It was addressed and stamped ready for the mail. Molly wrote a large hand, and it didn't require a microscope to read the name of the person for whom the letter was intended. Indeed, one could decipher it from across an ordinary sized room.

Molly was not especially cordial. She did not let it appear that she expected any return of that sweet interchange of sentiment which marks a child love. Ed made approaches toward speaking of it, but met with no encouragement. The conversation turned upon Molly's friend, who was also the widow's friend, and this led to some mention of the latter, but Molly did not speak of her as a matter of interest to her or her visitor. If she had any feeling about the widow she didn't show it.

Ed's call lasted a couple of hours. When he arose to depart he asked:

"Is the letter on the table for the mail?"

"It is."

"Let me post it for you, I pass the office on my way home."

"Thank you very much."

She handed him the letter. He put it in his pocket and took leave.

The next evening he called, bringing with him some flowers. Molly softened a little at the gift. When he spoke of how many flowers he had given her when they were children she said that now he spoke of it she remembered them very well.

"By the bye," said Ed, "on leaving you last evening I was so engrossed with the pleasure of meeting you again that I forgot to post the letter you committed to my care. I have brought it back to you, thinking that after the delay you might wish to reconsider sending it."

There was an odd look in Molly's eye and a faint tinge of color in her cheek. Instead of looking disturbed over Ed's forgetfulness, she looked rather pleased.

"Tonight as you pass the office will do as well," she said and spoke of other matters.

The next evening Ed called again. This was three evenings in succession. He brought her a more substantial gift than flowers—a glove box, handsomely inlaid. She received it graciously.

"It is for atonement," he said.

"Atonement for what?"

"A bad memory. Again I have forgotten to drop your letter in the mail."

She gave him a forgiving smile—what else could she do after the atoning gift?—and said:

"Oh, it doesn't matter. Put it in as you go by tonight."

"You are very kind not to scold me. I shall keep my mind on it from the time I leave you."

"On the mailing of the letter?"

"The letter."

This evidently meant something more than the words, for Ed spoke them with his eyes fixed on her intently, and she dropped hers to the floor.

During the next call Mr. Archer made upon Miss Doyle he made no mention of the letter—at least until he arose to go. He brought her a gift, but kept it in his pocket till his visit was finished. He had a great deal to say about their childhood days—more, indeed, than he had to say about the eight or nine years that had passed since, during which he had made no effort to communicate with her or to see her. Indeed, on this latter subject he maintained a discreet silence.

It was near midnight when, having told her that he had loved her ever since he was a boy and could never love any one else, he took out his gift—a ring—and slipped it on her finger. She made no objection, since she had consented to a betrothal. Before leaving he threw the letter he had again failed to post on the table.

"Did it contain a 'Yes' or a 'No'?" he asked.

She opened it and displayed a sheet of blank paper.

BAND SAW DEMONSTRATION.

Number of Greensboro Citizens See New Invention in Operation.

A number of Greensboro citizens witnessed the demonstration of the portable band saw mill yesterday afternoon and all appeared to be deeply interested in the machine, which was recently invented. Mr. B. F. Watkins, of Winston, who is conducting the demonstration, was seen by a reporter yesterday and he gave out some of the good points of the invention. The mill is manufactured by the American Portable Saw Mill Company, of this city.

The old fashioned saw mill is stationary and the timber is placed on a truck which carries the timber by the saw, the position of the timber having to be changed each time, thus curtailing the number of feet that could be sawed were the log to remain stationary. The portable band saw mill is of a different type altogether. The log to be sawed is placed on the center of the track and the band saw, which is on a truck frame, is raised to the proper height. The wheel on which the band saw is placed. Steam is conducted from a stationary boiler to the engine by means of a rubber pipe. When everything is in readiness the engine is started and is carried over the log, the saw clipping off the lumber at a lively gait. The engine is reversed and carried back and a twist of a lever places the saw in position for the next cut.

One of the features of the mill is the saving in the lumber. The circular saw tooth takes away a quarter of an inch every time it passes through the log. The new saw takes only one fourth as much so every four cuts three quarters of an inch of timber is saved. So there is a saving of 25 per cent. in the timber when the band saw is used, according to Mr. Watkins. Another feature is the ease with which it is carried about. It can be put on wheels in a few minutes and carried anywhere a wagon can go. So instead of hauling huge logs to a convenient place the mill can be carried to the logs. And there is also a saving in the planing as the saw does not eat in the circular saw.

It is also claimed that the band saw will cut much more lumber in a day than the old fashioned type will do. It is estimated that from 3,000 to 10,000 feet in 10 hours, according to the class of timber and the ability of the employees, can be saved.

HIS EDITORIAL POLICY.

Mark Twain Made a Clean Breast of It to His Readers.
Mark Twain took the editorial chair on the Buffalo Express in August, 1899, and this is the paragraph in which he made the readers acquainted with his new responsibility:
"I only wish to assure parties having a friendly interest in the prosperity of this journal that I am not going to hurt the paper deliberately and intentionally at any time. I am not going to introduce any startling reform or in any way attempt to make trouble. I am simply going to do my plain, unpretending duty—when I cannot get out of it. I shall work diligently and honestly and faithfully at all times and upon all occasions—when privation and want shall compel me to do so. In writing I shall always confine myself to the truth, except when it is attended with inconvenience. I shall witheringly rebuke all forms of crime and misconduct, except when committed by the party inhabiting my own vest. I shall not make any use of slang or vulgarity upon any occasion or in any circumstances and shall never use profanity except in discussing house rent and taxes. Indeed, upon second thought, I will not even then, for it is inelegant, un-Christian and degrading. I shall not often meddle with politics, because we have a political editor who is already excellent and only needs a term in the penitentiary to be perfect. I shall not write any poetry unless I conceive a spite against the subscribers."

TWO WORDS DEFINED.

Difference Between a Sanitarium and a Sanatorium.
The words "sanitarium" and "sanatorium" are popularly understood to have the same meaning and are generally used interchangeably when designating or describing places of refuge for sick people, but there is, in fact, quite a distinction between the meaning of the two words. In answer to a correspondent on this subject the Literary Digest says:
"The distinction between these words lies in the fact that they are derived from two different Latin roots. 'Sanatorium' is derived from the late Latin sanatorium, meaning health giving. The term relates specially to an institution for treatment of disease or care of invalids, especially an establishment employing natural therapeutic agents or conditions peculiar to the locality or some specific treatment or treating particular diseases. On the other hand, 'sanitarium' is derived from the Latin sanitas, from sanus, meaning whole or sound. 'Sanitarium' relates more specifically to a place where the hygienic conditions are preservative of health as distinguished from one where therapeutic agencies are employed.' Hence it is the province of a 'sanitarium' to preserve health, that of a 'sanatorium' to restore it. Care should be exercised in combining the proper vowels in these two words in order to indicate correctly the derivation."

Teaching the Cutpurses.

Stow in his account of London between 1560 and 1590 depicts an inn kept by a kind of Fagin of the time of Queen Elizabeth: "One Wotton kept an alehouse . . . near Billingsgate, and in the same house he procured all the cutpurses about the city to repair. There was a school set up to learn young boys to cut purses. Two devices were hung up. The one was a pocket, the other was a purse. The pocket had in it certain counters and was hung about with hawk's bells, and over the top did hang a little scaring bell. The purse had silver in it. And he that could take out a counter without any noise was allowed to be a public foyster. And he that could take a piece of silver out of the purse without noise of any of the bells was adjudged a judicial nypper, according to their terms of art. A foyster was a pickpocket; a nypper was a pickpurse or cutpurse."

Tricks Any Husband Can Learn.

To tell yellow from green in matching silk. To wash the dishes without breaking more than two. To keep quiet when he's spoken to. To face the cook when she's angry. To find out what ails the gas range. To stand in line an hour for two trading stamps. To set up his wife's brother in business. To get up winter nights to investigate "robbers." To smile when his old sweetheart's pictures are burned up. To prefer henna at home to billiards at the club. To drop his old friends because they are "vulgar." To give up coffee because it disagrees with his wife.—Puck.

The Old Man's Schedule.

When they asked the Billville youngster what the "old man" was doing now he replied:
"Well, when he ain't talkin' his head off 'bout breakfast bein' late he's raisin' Cain with the bired hands, an' when he ain't a-doin' of them things he's a-diggin' fer bait an' fishin' in the river an' a-doin' of nuthin' per-tickler."—Atlanta Constitution.

Entirely Different.

"It's all very well before a girl's married for her to get a flower in her hair," remarked the observer of events and things, "but it's an entirely different matter if, after she's married, she gets her hair in flour."

Cynical.

"You seem to find your book very interesting, Miss Maldstone."
"Yes; it is one of the most charming stories I have ever read, and so true to life. Every man in it is a villain."

HONEYMOON TRIP ENDS IN ARREST AS SMUGGLERS

Philadelphia Newly Wed Couple Are Searched on Liner and Valuable Gems They Did Not Declare Are Found.

New York World.
To be held up by customs officers, searched, placed under arrest and held in jail was the sad ending of a honeymoon voyage which yesterday came to two Philadelphians who were returning from a wedding trip which had been spent in Europe. On the passenger list of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie they appeared as Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Dannenbaum. To the boarding officer who took their declarations Mr. Dannenbaum described himself as a resident of Philadelphia and a ribbon dealer of that city. Answers to queries which were put to them after they had reached the pier were of such a nature as to excite suspicion. The result was an order that they be searched.

They were accordingly escorted on board the ship, where one of the matrons took the bride in hand and conducted a search which revealed a magnificent pearl necklace. The inspector who searched the husband discovered another splendid necklace of Oriental workmanship and a pair of gold cuff buttons. After the search had been completed the two were brought before Special Deputy Surveyor George H. Smyth for a hearing. The result of it was that both were placed under arrest and taken before United States Commissioner Rouss, sitting in Hoboken, and held in jail on a charge of attempting to smuggle.

These were not the only ones to have been enmeshed in the customs net. On the Kronprinzessin, arriving from Antwerp, were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goodman, also of Philadelphia, and their two daughters. The party had four trunks. In the first that was opened the inspectors found a gown which had not been included in the declaration and which an appraiser valued at $100. Acting Deputy Surveyor Bradley ordered all four trunks seized and then had them sent to the Appraisers' stores. Mr. Goodman was directed to appear at noon. He was there on time, and when asked by Mr. Smyth what statement he had to make, the Philadelphian asserted that he had lost his bills of purchase. As he adhered to his original declaration, an examination of the contents of all the trunks was ordered. The examination disclosed dutiable articles to the value of $551. The passenger was allowed to pay the duty imposed and to take his trunks. Because she had two bracelets and two brooches concealed upon her person and of which no mention had been made in her declaration, Mrs. W. A. Julian of Cincinnati, a passenger on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie yesterday, had the four pieces of jewelry taken from her and confiscated by the customs officials. Collector Loeb yesterday heard the case of Miss Nance O'Neil, the actress, who had got into trouble with the customs men on her arrival from Europe on Saturday. The collector decided that she was innocent of any intent to smuggle and permitted her to take her trunks on a payment of $217 duty.

HELPED IN NICK OF TIME

Consumptive Boy In Tenement Coming Into Good Health.
Baltimore Sun.

In the rear of a rambling tenement house in this city is a little boy who is slowly and hopefully coming into the natural heritage of childhood—good health. His is one of the many cases in which the friendly offices of the Federated Charities have come in the nick of time to help and to encourage for the future an entire family.

This child, his parents and three younger brothers live in three small rooms. The father, though industrious and temperate, is a man of limited ability and can hardly provide daily necessities for his little flock. The mother, devotedly attached to her children and tied down to her home by their demands upon her, could do nothing to fight off the dread enemy—tuberculosis—when it took firm hold of her firstborn.

Each week, each day saw the boy more wan and listless, needing more and better food if he would win in the grim fight against disease. It was finally through the kind urging of the doctor that pride was thrown to the winds and for the sake of the child they were persuaded to ask for help for the time being.

The help, given freely and wisely, proper food for the little consumptive and needed instruction for the whole family, has proved a godsend. It is a joyously happy little boy who greets the "milk lady," as he calls the agent on her visits now, for, though by no means well yet, he is wonderfully improved and the future is bright with promise.

Such cases of help are happening daily not hourly, here in Baltimore, and it is to further such work that the public is asked to give, and give again. Every sick child made well and every ignorant family enlightened makes the city a safer place for all, and the investment will bring big returns.

Even when he reaches the top of the ladder a man may not be above suspicion.

Even with flying machines our castles in the air are not accessible.

Struck a Rich Mine.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., says he struck a perfect mine of health in Dr. King's New Life Pills for they cured him of Liver and Kidney Trouble after 12 years of suffering. They are the best pills on earth for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia, Debility. 25c at Fariss-Klutz Drug Co.

Sedan and Bath Chairs.

The sedan chair, so called from having been made at Sedan, in France, was introduced into England in the time of King Charles I. Often this chair was most ornate without and luxurious within, for an ancient poet speaks of one—

... Covered with velvet red,
And cloth of fine gold about your head,
With damask white and azure blue
Well diapered with lilies new.

Seated in their sedan chairs in all the glory of paint, powder and patches, the belles and ladies of fashion of the eighteenth century were carried from room to room by two stout lackeys in livery. As all people who love their Dickens are aware, these chairs were still in use in the days of the Pickwick club.

The origin of the bath chair is "wropt in mystery." We are told that it was "much used by the inhabitants of Bath," probably for the purpose of getting to and from the pump room. Nowadays the use of the bath chair is confined chiefly to invalids.—London Mail.

An English Election.

Remarks the London Chronicle: "The worst of election expenses is that the candidate can never be sure what sort of pig in a poke he is buying. The parliament may run its full term or it may come to an end after a few months. Even if it lasts the game may be decided not worth the candle. Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff gives a poignant little incident of the wearisome struggle over the coercion bill in 1881. 'When things were at their dulllest and deadliest Stuart Rendel heard a man as he rolled off his seat in the extremity of weariness say, "And to think that I should have paid £7,000 for this!"'"

Her Proof.

"Just think of it! One person in every thirty-seven in England is a pauper."

"Why, John," she returned, "it isn't so. I met more than thirty-seven people in London last summer myself, and there wasn't a pauper in the lot."—London Tit-Bits.

He Was Right.

"My doctor told me I would have to quit eating so much meat."

"Did you laugh him to scorn?"

"I did at first. But when he sent in his bill I found he was right."—Washington Star.
